Give the Cow a Rest

Every cow ought to be given a vacation of six to eight weeks before freshening. After she is thoroughly dry her feed should be of the best in quality and sufficient in quantity to enable her to lay on flesh. Here is where most dairymen make their greatest mistakes. They do not consider that a dry cow needs much feed since she has only herself to keep. At no time during the lactation period will it pay better to feed a cow well than while she is dry. The flesh she gains while dry will cost for feed from six to ten cents per pound, depending on the season. After freshening she will milk off this extra flesh in butter fat at from twenty-five to thirty cents per pound, giving you a profit of from three hundred to five hundred per cent. on the cost of the extra feed it took to put this flesh on her. A mighty good investment, yet how few dairymen feed the dry cow much above a maintenance ration unless she herself gets it from good pasture. In view of this, feed her very liberally after she is dry. Corn, oats, and bran, equal parts, make a good feed and all these grains are available to many dairymen. During the winter months a few pounds of such a mixture in addition to silage and clover hay, if you have both will put a cow in fine condition. If she is on good grass a little of the above grain mixture will likewise help to put her in most excellent condition.

Say what you will about the cost of bran, it is the safest feed to give a cow about to freshen. At this period attention is necessary every day. Watch the udder develop; see that the cow lacks nothing to make her comfortable and gain in strength so that she can make up a fine udder. In winter the feeding of a little oil meal is almost necessary a few days before freshening. Begin with one-fourth pound per day and increase by one-fourth pound per day up to one or one and half pounds per day. Things will move along better by so doing, the after-birth will be expelled quickly, and the cow will regain her strength in a short time.

After calving milk little and often. One quart from each teat every two hours will keep the cow in better shape than milking her out completely in one operation. Milking a cow clean immediately after calving is a dangerous practice. It induces milk fever and other udder complications. Give her warm water for a day or so after calving, and a good barn mash as soon as she will take it. Continue this for a few days after. Take the calf away within two days anyway. Watch the udder and begin increasing the feed very gradually if no bad symptoms appear. Don't be in a hurry to get her on full feed; take three weeks in which to do that. Feed a balanced ration. If you are in the race simply for production, make one-half her feed of grain; if for the most profit, give her all the ensilage and clover or alfalfa hay she will eat, and enough grain to bring you the greatest percentage of profit.

What Feed Will Do

You can't feed blood into an animal, but you can make the blood that is in him better and purer and more worth while.

Take for example a cow that comes from a father and mother of good blood, but not pure, blood. You can't take that cow and feed her so that she will ever be eligible to be registered; but you can, by good care and feeding, bring what will astonish you.

A farmer who has a cow that has a world's record for milk, says: "It's the man and the feed."

That is: If the man is good and kind and attentive to his own interests and will give his cow all she wants to eat of the kind of food she needs and likes, he will bring out of that cow the very best that is in her.

Millions of cows never do their best for the men who own them. They can not, because they do not have a chance. It is pitiful the number of cows we have that never just get all they should have and just the kind of food they should have to enable them to do their best. So they go along, scrimp and scrimping, all who have anything to do with them.

The way to get much out of a cow is to put much into her. It is the only way. You can't do it any other way. Feed. Be kind. Give good care. You can make your cows worth more from 25 to 50 per cent. more to you than they are.

How To Carve Fowl

Comparatively few people know how to carve a roasting fowl. To do it properly they must have a knowledge of the joints of the fowl. The operation is as follows: Place the fowl conveniently in front of you. Plant the fork firmly in the joint of the wing farthest from the body, and draw with the joint toward the leg on the same side. Then pass the knife underneath and the wing joint is taken off at the point. Then slip the knife between the leg and the body to cut through the large joint there. When the leg is drawn backward with the fork the joint will easily give way before the blade of the knife. After the other wing and leg are off, cut into the top of the breast under the "wish-bone," and lifting this with the fork it may loosen entirely. Then carve slices from both sides of the breast. The collar bones are next taken off and the side bones separated from the back. Chickens, geese, ducks and turkeys are carved alike. Smaller game, like pigeons, are not carved, but simply split down the back, a half being served to each person.

Twenty-two are Dead, Thirty-three Missing

Starkville, Colo., Oct. 12.—The situation in the Colorado fuel and iron mine here tonight may be summarized as follows:

Bodies buried and in the morgue,
fourteen; bodies located in mine,
eight; bodies missing, thirty-three.
Tonight the workers are devoting their energies to the removal of the eight bodies located at noon. Today five bodies were taken to Trinidad for burial. As the sorrowful procession was leaving the camp, and in sight of the mourners, Fred Foster, an electrician, who had been assisting in the rescue work, was struck by a Santa Fe train and killed.

THE EDITOR, CROSSFIELD CHRONICLE.

Sir:
Last week I, in common with one or two other citizens of the village, received notice that all pigs were to be removed outside the Town limits, the reason given being that the City fathers had suddenly seen a grave danger to the health of the community by the keeping of a dozen or so of pigs in the Town.

I would like to take this opportunity of informing the Council that the person upon whose complaint they acted, who,
by the way is an ex-councillor, was very far from having the health of the Village in mind; in fact he has taken this move purely and simply out of spite towards myself. If he really fears an outbreak of some disease or another, why did he not complain long ago when the weather was much warmer and flies (now recognized as amongst the greatest carriers of typhoid germs) much more numerous than they are now.

My only regret is, that in taking the above action he has put other people beside myself to more or less inconvenience, but I suppose that a mind capable of such petty meanness is quite incapable of seeing this far.

Now Sir, if it is really the intention of the Council to take steps to prevent an outbreak of Typhoid fever, a very laudable intention indeed, would it not be as well for them to instruct their Sanitary Inspector to investigate the condition of a good many of the closets in Town, and in cases where he finds that pits are being used in connection with closets (and I may say that I have the authority of a Councillor for stating that such are being used) to prohibit the use of them altogether, as it is well known that these pits are the worst possible menace to the health of any Town, more especially,
where the water supply is entirely dependent upon wells.

I imagine that after the Inspector is through with this trip he will wish that his duties took him no farther than handling letters to innocent owners of pigs.

In conclusion I would say that whilst I am quite prepared to obey the by-laws of the Village, I am surprised that the Council should have allowed themselves to be made such an easy mark of.

Yours truly,
R. L. ASHDOWN

A Terrible Mixup

A Kansas editor who was full of hard cider, got a male and a marriage sadly mixed. The description ran
as follows:

Wm. Smith, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Smith, was disposed of at public auction to Lucy Anderson, on my place, one mile east of this place, in the presence of seventy guests, including the following to wit:
2 mules, 12 head of cattle, Rev.
Jackson tied the nuptial knot averaging 1250 pounds on the hoof. The beautiful home of the bride was tastefully decorated with a swish clam spade, 1 sulky rake, 1 feed grinder, 1 sett double harness nearly new,
and just before the ceremony was pronounced Mendelssohn's inspiring wedding march was given by 1 milch
cow. 1 Jersey cow to be fresh next April, carrying a bunch of flowers in her hand and looking charming in a gown made of light spring wagon, 3 ricks of hay, one grindstone, mous-line de sole, trimmed with 100 pounds of spuds.

The groom is a well known young man and has always stood well in society circles of 12 Berkshire hogs, while the bride is an accomplished
teacher of a splendid drove of Polan Chinas—pedigrees furnished if desired.

Among the beautiful presents were two sets of silver knives and forks, spring barrow, wheelbarrow,
go-cart and other things too numerous to mention.

The bridal couple left yesterday
on an extended trip, terms twelve months time to responsible parties otherwise cash. After this Mr. and Mrs. Smith will go to keeping house in a cosy home at the corner of Main and J. E. Carroll, Auctioneer.

And Then Some

There was a youth in our town—his name my memory slips—who feared he'd kissed some microbes from off his sweet-heart's lips. When he found what he had done, with all his might and main, he rushed back the following night and kissed them on again.—Chicago News.

Fire at Carstairs

A disastrous fire occurred at Carstairs on Sunday morning at three o'clock when Driscoll's Hotel and Lusk's Hall were burned to the ground causing a loss of $20,000, besides endangering the lives of several persons in the building.
Everything was destroyed, the guests
losing their clothing and everything belonging to them.

A Dominion government surveyor who was staying at the hotel, lost some very valuable documents relative to the Peace River country, and they can only be replaced by another trip to that country.

Every effort was made to check the fire by the local brigade assisted by the townspeople, but, while they could not save the hotel and hall, they succeeded in saving a laundry and restaurant. No cause can be given for the fire. The buildings burned were owned by Mrs. E. Stone of Calgary and were partially insured.—Didsbury Pioneer

Valuable Advice.

In the first place I always impress upon my patients the importance of careful living and regular habits.
Moderation in eating, keeping the feet dry and wearing plenty of warm clothing are some of the precautions.
No amount of medicine will cure,
or even help, unless attention is paid
to these few simple rules.

I have had perfect results where patients followed these instructions,
assisted by the following blood tonic
and rheumatic specific: Fluid Extract Cascara, 15 oz.; Fluid Extract Carruba Compound, 1 oz.; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, 6 oz. Dose: One teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

It is advisable to drink plenty of water during the treatment.

A prominent local merchant who had tried this treatment states that it relieves backache, bladder trouble,
and urinary troubles almost immediately and has a gentle but thorough action on the kidneys.
We advise all our readers to keep this prescription. The instructions are valuable.

Had Eczema on Legs For Twenty Years

Thinks no one could have it worse—Was cured by DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

There are plenty more fatal diseases than eczema, but not many which cause more downright suffering.

The tendency of eczema to spread over the body is annoying and discouraging, and the itching—the almost constant and persistent itching—nearly drives a person crazy.

You can scarcely wonder that people are enthusiastic over Dr. Chase's Ointment, when it brings them prompt relief and actually cures itching, tormenting eczema. And if you could read a few hundreds of the letters we receive from cured ones you would not be long in deciding what treatment to apply for eczema, salt rheum and similar skin diseases.

Mrs. Fred W. Clark, Peltworth, Ad-dington Co., Ont., writes: "My mother had eczema on both legs for about 20 years, she doctored for a long time and tried everything for it, but got no relief until a friend advised her to use Dr. Chase's Ointment, which she got.

"She found that Dr. Chase's Ointment gave her great relief, so she got some more and continued this treatment faithfully, until now she is entirely cured of eczema. I don't think anyone could have this disease worse than she did, and shall not attempt to describe her suffering. She recommends Dr. Chase's Ointment to any one suffering from eczema."

It is such a cure as this that has made Dr. Chase's Ointment the "standard ointment" the world over. Do not be satisfied with the "just as good" kind. It will only disappoint. If you insist in getting what you ask for you will be better pleased afterwards and your intelligence will not be insulted next time.

GLAD TIDINGS FROM NOVA SCOTIA

SURE RELIEF FOR SUFFERING WOMEN IS FOUND IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Miss Kathleen Murphy Tells how she Suffered and How Easy and Complete was her cure by the great Canadian Kidney Pills.

Tangier Mines, Halifax Co., N. S. (Special).—There is no longer any doubt that of the thousands of sufferers from kidney disease, many of every one owe their troubles to kidney disease. For that reason it is glad tidings that Miss Kathleen Murphy of this place is sending out her suffering sisters.

"My troubles started from a cold," says Miss Murphy in an interview. "I had pains in my head and back, and Rheumatism attacked me finally."

"Then I started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills and they cleared out my Rheumatism, cured my Kidney Diseases and brought back my health."

"I would not be without Dodd's Kidney Pills for I have given them a thorough test and found them to be all that is claimed for them."

The secret of health for women is to keep the kidneys strong and healthy. Healthy kidneys mean pure blood, abundant energy and a clear, healthy complexion. The "one sure way" to keep the kidneys healthy is to use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

THE TALE OF A CAT.

How a Toronto Merchant Made a Peddler Pay.

The other afternoon, in the haze of the heat, not much business was done in the store along College street, in the district adorned by the residence of Col. Denison.

In a shaded doorway stood one hot merchant looking out into a not unprofitable world. There was little to see that was interesting, except that now and then a car clattered past the man in the doorway recognized an acquaintance among the passengers, with whom he listlessly exchanged signals, admitting their mutual existence.

Presently along College street came a one-horse wagon driven by a white-haired collector of rags, bones and bottles. The driver of the vehicle was making good time, as if he had heard of a place a mile away where he could get something for nothing.

As the vehicle burst past the store a cat, hanging for some reason of its own, decided that it wanted to cross the road, undertook to do so, but mislaid its paw, and, in the confusion, was crushed to death.

The driver, with a frightened look back at the shop, had done, struck his horse and shoved on the reins.

With a shout the man in the doorway sprang into the street, and demanded that the driver of the cat should pay. Two blocks ahead a policeman stopped the driver with a shade tree and sauntered down, drawn by the angry shout of the merchant. The policeman, with a look at the man, picked up his horse, declaring with voice, hands, and uplifted eyebrows that he didn't mean to do it and was not to blame.

"Why," said the shopman, "you no have the cat, like that. I wouldn't have seen that cat killed for five dollars."

"Not my fault," declared the vendor.
"Not your fault—not your fault! What's the fault is it? Was it my fault standing in my own door. Was it the cat's fault? Do you think it meant to commit suicide? Now, you've got to settle and settle quick."

"Here, here! what's all this?" demanded the policeman, who had just arrived.
"He's killed the cat and he's got to pay for it. I wouldn't have seen that cat killed for five dollars. He's got to pay two dollars to settle."

"Two dollars," exclaimed the peddler, appealing with his eyes to high heaven. "Two dollars for a cat?"
"Two dollars—that's what."

"It seems a bit high," commented the policeman, as he walked to the sidewalk with an air which plainly indicated he did not interfere as long as the disputants kept the peace.

The two men haggled for a long time, but the peddler, handed over a one-dollar bill and drove on his way, removing the cat for burial.

A number of persons had gathered as the dispute proceeded, and when the merchant entered his shop, one of these said to him:
"That must have been a valuable cat. What breed was it?"

"I don't know," said the merchant.
"You see I never saw the cat before. I didn't say it belonged to me. I don't know who owned it. The identification came to me as I witnessed the accident." Then he smiled.

"I didn't think I could get away with it. You see this dollar is to reimburse me for the mental pain I endured as an eye-witness of the tragedy."

A Magistrate's Duty.

The numerous utterances which Col. Denison has made regarding the uselessness of law are responsible for the fact that many people think that the Toronto police force is a sort of happy-go-lucky criminal machine. It is true that there are many officers who lack guidance of the chief officials, and they are allowed to show their ability to joke or their ability to rule according to their turn of mind. However, while it is a fact that the chief magistrate gets along with as little law as possible, he has a system for conducting his cases. He gave his own idea to the duties of a magistrate some time ago while arguing with a lawyer over the merits of a case.

The lawyer in question was James B. Mackenzie, "Certiorari Jim," who has won fame for himself in the local courts because of his intimate knowledge of legal quibbles and technicalities. When he tried to work up a police court case, he found that his points of law had no weight with the magistrate.

Col. Denison listened to a lengthy protest from Mr. Mackenzie, and then he remarked: "The purpose of law is to give men a fair trial and punish them if they are guilty; not to allow thieves to escape through technicalities."

"That is not the idea at all," declared the lawyer.
"Well, I have given you my view of a court," went on the magistrate. "When I took my oath of office, I promised to dispense justice with cunning, wit and wisdom. But I remembered that some writer said cunning was the child of wit and fraud and looked exactly like its ma, so I decided that I would proceed in this court I would try to get along with the other two."

Col. Seely admitted in the British House of Commons recently that in certain private courts in Southern Nigeria fines had been received in gin, although the practice was abolished by law in 1901.

Masked Men held up a Vancouver Bank

Vancouver, B. C., October 9—Police officers have all day been scouring the east of the city in hopes of finding some clue to the perpetrators of a bold hold up of a branch of the Royal bank late last night. The bank was situated on Park Drive in Grand View, an east end suburb. Assistant Manager Hugget was just closing the front doors at ten o'clock when he was confronted by two masked men, armed with rifles. Hugget and R. Jaudine, manager of the bank, were forced to march back into the vault, the doors of which the robbers closed. The robbers then ransacked the various cash drawers, taking five hundred dollars. Then they reopened the vault doors, and having freed the officials, sauntered out on to the street and disappeared. Many people watched the robbery from a safe distance, but none attempted to stop the armed men when they left the building and disappeared in an alley. The neighborhood is thickly settled and there appeared to be little chance of catching the robbers.

New Cereal Map of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta

The preliminary edition of the new Cereal Map of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, covering the crop areas for 1909, is just issued by the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, and a similar map is stated to be in progress showing the crop areas for 1910.

The efforts of the Department have been for many years directed to placing better on Dominion Lands in the West. The land available from existing lines of transportation is now, however, rapidly approaching exhaustion and a question of great present interest, and the interest in which will increase from year to year is "what is being done with the land?" The Cereal map is an effort to answer this question.

What the map shows.—The aim is to show graphically, and separately as to each the areas under the four leading grains in correct proportion to the whole area and to each other. Circles in each township, drawn to scale, give at a glance the area under each grain and the colors show the variety of grain as follows:

Red—Spring wheat.
Dark Red—Winter wheat.
Green—Oats.
Yellow—Barley.
Blue—Flax.

The information has been furnished by the Provincial Governments having been compiled from the records furnished by the crop correspondents in each Province.

Elevators.—The latest information obtainable has been used to give, in addition to the grain areas, the total elevator capacity at each railway station, each railway system having its own color. This elevator information is also given in a table which should be found complete and valuable.

Statistics.—The statistics of grain production in each province for each grain, and from the earliest records down to last year, are given in a special table; these have been obtainable from the records of the Provincial Governments.

A table is also given of the grain production of each country in the world for last year. The figures were obtained from the International Institute of Agriculture.

Up to date in other respects.—All the usual information, post offices, railways, topography, etc., is up to date.

Future editions.—It is intended to issue new editions each year, and, as in the case of the majority of the publications of the Department of the Interior, no charge is made. The edition covering 1910 should be published sometime during the coming winter.

Results hoped for.—The circulation of this map freely throughout the business communities of Canada east and west, and as well, in Great Britain and the United States should be a distinct advantage to the country.

The following as to a much more ambitious map enterprise applies to this,—
"The comparison being made by the eye and not by the mind, the point is not so much that one CAN compare the information as to different localities but one must.

Use a Low Wagon

if the farmer will stop to think of it, he will find he has the same reasons for using a low-down, handy wagon that he has for using a gasoline engine or a cream separator, or a harvesting or mowing machine.

It is simply a quicker, easier way of doing things. Manufacturers do not hesitate to discard old machines, even when they are yet good, when they find other machines that will do the work better or more economically.

Why should not a farmer do the same?

At least when his old high-wheel wagon is wearing out. He is, in a very large sense, a manufacturer. The one tool he uses most, practically every day, is his wagon. It is beyond question that the low, handy wagon is a great labor saver. It enables the user to save his strength. Isn't that doing the work more economically? Isn't it something that in the course of a year you are enabled to lift heavy weights a thousand times, perhaps ten thousand times, on to a low wagon instead of a high one? Go over in your mind the kind of work you do with your wagon during the year. You load and unload heavy boxes and barrels, sacks of potatoes and grain, you haul manure, stone, earth, fodder, hay, water, feed, etc. You find no good reason why this work can't be done just as well on the low wagon as on a high one. Then isn't it something that you can load and unload all these things from a low wagon instead of a high one?

Our advice is, look into this lowdown, handy wagon matter. Farmers have the same right to take the short cut to their work that other people have.
